

Final Sketches

I sketched my final architectural design before I started building it in Revit to help visualise what I was building before racing into it and realising I hadn't considered everything. The below sketches show various angles and views of the Clery Pavilion design including it floorpan layout.

